

Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election is a clear example of the dangers of media consolidation.

I feel that something is being forced on me that I don't want and cannot accept. This is like forcing propaganda down people's throats and it is not in the public interests. Credible networks at least try to be balanced. This is a level of control that should be, if not already illegal.

Sinclair's actions show why we need to strengthen media ownership rules, not weaken them. They show why the license renewal process needs to involve more than a returned postcard. Thank you.
